What We're Watching

The White House kicked off this fall's fight over federal spending, sending to Capitol Hill an initial wish list of items it wants included in a must-pass bill to prevent a government shutdown at the end of September. The list of so-called anomalies in what otherwise would be an extension of current spending levels includes requests to facilitate more funding on items ranging from border control to the presidential inauguration. The request will now will be subject to scrutiny by Republican leaders in the House and Senate when they return next week, as they work to develop a new continuing resolution that they can pass before current funds lapse.

Just 70 days before the election, Donald Trump's muddled immigration message has sparked widespread confusion. The softer rhetoric may be an attempt to improve his image with Hispanic voters in states like Florida, Colorado and Nevada. But his agenda remains a virtual wish list for immigration hardliners. The kinder tone that he's using isn't winning over prominent Trump critics in the pro-immigration community, and it's upsetting some of his most ardent supporters. Trump surrogates tried to calm the furor on yesterday's talk shows by insisting he has been consistent. Whether Trump has a refined message will be tested Wednesday, when Trump says he'll make a "major speech" on illegal immigration in Arizona.

Hillary Clinton is trying to entice Republican voters to ditch Trump by portraying him as outside the mainstream of their party, putting her at odds with congressional Democrats who want to link the party's House and Senate candidates to Trump's controversial brand of politics. Democrats are torn about a strategy that some argue lets Republicans off the hook for their support of Trump, and minimizes the nativist and nationalist strains within the conservative movement. And while Clinton has scored some prominent Republican defectors, like HP CEO Meg Whitman, no House or Senate Republican on the ballot in November is openly supporting Clinton.

John Kerry arrived in Bangladesh today to offer U.S. help as the government confronts growing extremism that's resulted in deadly attacks against locals and foreigners and raised concerns Islamic State is putting down roots in the country. In meetings with Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina and others during the one-day visit, Kerry may present new military and law-enforcement support. He'll also meet opposition leaders who argue the government has used the extremist threat to crack down on political opponents.

Policy & Regs

Obama Heads for China to Talk Investment: President Barack Obama leaves Friday for a week-long swing through Asia, stopping first in Hangzhou, China, where he will meet one-on-one with Chinese President Xi Jinping. U.S. companies will be watching for any signs of progress on a bilateral investment treaty that would give them equal treatment in China. Obama also is expected to talk up the Trans-Pacific Partnership during the trip, which includes the Group of 20 leaders summit Sept. 4-5. The meetings come at a time when other TPP countries such as Australia are looking to the rival Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership as a possible alternative to the TPP, if it the deal falls through in the U.S.

Obama Finds an Ally in Wal-Mart, Whose Stores He Once Shunned: As a freshman senator with his eye on the presidency, Barack Obama said he'd never shop at a Wal-Mart and held the company up as an emblem of corporate greed. Today, Wal-Mart is one of Obama's most reliable corporate allies, a go-to partner that's backed the White House on more than a dozen business initiatives, particularly Obamacare and climate change. The pairing benefits both.

State Tax Groups Welcome Goodlatte's New Draft Bill: More multistate groups have weighed in on Rep. Robert Goodlatte's new proposed online sales tax bill. Leaders of the Streamlined Sales Tax Governing Board said Aug. 26 that the group will review Goodlatte's new discussion draft to determine how it meshes with a three- or four-page summary concept paper that, until now, has served as the only working document to come from the House Judiciary Committee.

Senators Want Hearings on Big Bump in Federal Insurance Costs: Sens. Ben Cardin and Barbara Mikulski are expecting briefings from the Office of Personnel Management about sharp increases in long-term care insurance premiums for federal workers, a Cardin spokeswoman said. The lawmakers, whose constituents include many federal employees, sent a letter to the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs committee Aug. 19 requesting a hearing on the increase.

Pilots-For-Hire Cramming for Test as the Age of Drones Arrives: Thousands of would-be drone pilots are racing to get licensed under new U.S. regulations that have opened an aerial stampede. More than 3,300 have signed up to take the test today, the first day it's available, and the FAA estimates the number of drone operators-for-hire may exceed the nation's 171,000 private pilots within a year.

Clinton Proposes Plan to Address Mental Health Treatment (Associated Press): Hillary Clinton is rolling out a comprehensive plan to address millions of Americans coping with mental illness, pointing to the need to fully integrate mental health services into the nation's health care system. Clinton's campaign released a multi-pronged approach to mental health care today, aimed at ensuring that Americans would no longer separate mental health from physical health in terms of access, care and quality of treatment.

Super PACs Dominate Ad Spending in 2016: The volume of ads sponsored by outside groups grew exponentially since 2000, with super political action committees providing the lion's share of spending in the last two election cycles, a new report from the Wesleyan Media Project and the Center for Responsive Politics shows. In total, there were more than 2 million ads aired for the 2016 election cycle so far, 9 percent more than in 2012, with $1.56 billion being spent. Ads in presidential, Senate, and House races were down from 2012, but an increase of 40 percent more ads in governors' races made up the difference.

Senator Joni Ernst Tries to Rise With Donald Trump by Her Side: After a week in which few Republicans rushed to his defense as Hillary Clinton painted him as a flat-out racist who does not represent the party's traditions, Donald Trump got a boost on Saturday from Senator Joni Ernst of Iowa. The Republican presidential nominee appeared at Ernst's "Roast and Ride," which in its second year is already one of the highest-profile events for Iowa Republicans, who have been mostly united in their support for Trump. Attending the fundraiser, rally and barbecue in Des Moines, Trump enjoyed a rare moment of Republican unity led by one of the party's rising stars as Ernst cements her status in the state that holds the first-in-the-nation presidential nominating contest.

Trump Taps Bush, Romney Veterans for Transition (Politico): Donald Trump won the Republican nomination by fighting the party's establishment, denouncing big-money donors and vowing to dismantle a Washington influence-peddling system that he says is "rigged" against ordinary Americans. But now his transition team is turning to quintessential GOP insiders as it lays the groundwork for his possible presidency. His ex-rival turned transition chairman, New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie, is relying on operatives from the campaigns of both Presidents Bush, members of Mitt Romney's sprawling transition effort and two of Christie's closest political confidants, including the New Jersey power broker who helped launch him into political prominence.

Meet the Man Siphoning Money from Donald Trump (Politico): At a glance, the two websites look virtually indistinguishable. Both feature a photo of Donald Trump, in a suit and red tie, in front of a giant American flag. Both seemingly offer a chance for two to win dinner with Donald Trump. One is at donalddjtrump.com; the other is at dinnerwithtrump.org. The first belongs to Trump's campaign. The second is a scheme run by Ian Hawes, a 25-year-old Maryland man who has no affiliation with Trump or his campaign and who has preyed on more than 20,000 unsuspecting donors, collecting more than $1 million in the process.

Mylan to Sell Generic EpiPen to Quell Outcry Over $600 Cost: Mylan NV, the drugmaker under fire for pricing its EpiPen emergency allergy shots at $600, said it will introduce a generic version in coming weeks that will halve the price. The generic EpiPen will be identical to the branded product, including device functionality and drug formulation, and cost $300 per two-pack carton, Mylan said in a statement today. The company also plans to continue to sell the branded version.

FDA Calls for Wider Zika Testing of Blood Supply: The FDA wants all U.S. blood donation centers to screen for the Zika virus, expanding on a previous recommendation for localized testing, according to an updated guidance released Aug. 26. Peter Marks, director of the Center for Biologics Evaluation and Research in the Food and Drug Administration, said the revised guidance calls for universal testing of donated whole blood and blood components for the Zika virus in the U.S. and its territories. The initial guidance issued in February limited Zika screening to areas with an active Zika virus transmission.

DOD Says Clashes in Non-Islamic State Areas Unacceptable: The United States is not involved in those activities and they were not coordinated with U.S. forces, Special Presidential Envoy for the Global Coalition to Counter ISIL Brett McGurk said on Twitter, citing a statement from Spokesman Peter Cook. DOD says it is monitoring reports of air strikes, clashes south of Jarablus between Turkish forces, some opposition groups, and units affiliated with Syrian Democratic Forces, McGurk said.

Expediting Critical Solutions: Army Secretary Eric Fanning

Since Eric Fanning was confirmed as Secretary of the Army last May, he has said that acquisition reform, including the establishment of a Rapid Capabilities Office to expedite the fielding of critical solutions, was one of his top priorities. DRIVING THE DAY

NEW TRUMP AD: "Two Americas: Economy" is a 30-second spot that will run in Ohio, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Florida, New Hampshire, Iowa, Nevada, Virginia and Colorado. <http://bit.ly/2bCS0B3>

The spot seeks to contrast the economy under Clinton, where the "middle class gets crushed, spending goes up, taxes go up." The ad brands the policies as "more of the same." In Trump's economy, the ad says, millions of new jobs will be added and middle class families will get tax relief. The ad ends with a shot of Freedom Tower in New York as the text "Make America Great Again!" appears on screen.

Mitt Romney lost eight of nine of these states where the $10 million campaign is running, but the Trump campaign says they are aiming to change that -- despite the gap with Clinton in most statewide polls.

CONTROL OF CONGRESS -- "Democrats Step Up Pursuit of House Republicans Left Limping by Donald Trump," by Jonathan Martin and Alex Burns on A1: "Emboldened by Donald J. Trump's struggles in the presidential race, Democrats in Congress are laying the groundwork to expand the list of House Republicans they will target for defeat as part of an effort to slash the Republicans' 30-seat majority and even reclaim control if Mr. Trump falls further ...

"Few Democrats say they believe their party is positioned, at this point, to take control of the House, where Republicans hold their largest majority in 87 years. Because of the way congressional districts are drawn, Republicans have a powerful structural advantage even in a punishing political environment ...

"Democratic strategists say they believe as many as a dozen districts could become competitive late in the race, depending on Mr. Trump's fortunes. Among the Republican districts that Democrats see as newly threatened are those held by Representatives John L. Mica of Florida, who represents the Orlando area; Kevin Yoder of Kansas, from the suburbs of Kansas City; and Michael G. Fitzpatrick, a lawmaker from outside Philadelphia who is retiring. Several others represent diverse, economically comfortable areas of California, including Representatives Darrell E. Issa and Ed Royce, from the San Diego and Los Angeles suburbs.

"Both parties are also eyeing a set of moderate- to conservative-leaning open seats in states like Indiana and Minnesota, where incumbents are retiring or running for other offices. Republicans fear that Mr. Trump has tainted the party's brand for any prospective successor in areas without a well-known lawmaker already in place." <http://nyti.ms/2bv6Qja>

HOUSE REPUBLICAN BRAIN DUMP ON THEIR NOVEMBER PROSPECTS:

Yes, there are a bunch of competitive races, and yes, House Republicans believe they could lose upwards of 15 seats, but they still see no evidence that they should be bracing for a wave election. Top GOP leaders say Democrats have been beating the wave-election-is-coming drum for months without any hard data to back it up. These officials acknowledge the tide could turn and Trump could drag down a host of safe Republicans, but it hasn't yet. And Republican leaders are now privately admitting they do need to step up their game in competitive seats. Since Donald Trump isn't bringing in money to the party like Mitt Romney did, House Republicans also need to boost their fundraising. The main message from top Republicans: Yes, there are headwinds, but they aren't that worried ... yet.

Good Monday morning. Welcome to one of the slowest weeks of the year, as everyone tries to squeeze all the juice out of the summer. There are 71 days until Election Day, and it's been 268 days since Hillary Clinton held a press conference. In theory, over the next week the collective attention of the country will train on the presidential election. There are just 28 days until the first presidential debate at Hofstra University in Hempstead, New York. Instead of easing into Labor Day weekend, Donald Trump is heading to Arizona to make a major immigration policy address Wednesday. Jake is, again, filing this morning from London Heathrow. He's super excited to fly the British Airways 787 later today into BWI for the first time.

HACKED -- "FBI says foreign hackers penetrated state election systems," by Yahoo's Michael Isikoff: "The FBI has uncovered evidence that foreign hackers penetrated two state election databases in recent weeks, prompting the bureau to warn election officials across the country to take new steps to enhance the security of their computer systems, according to federal and state law enforcement officials. The FBI warning, contained in a 'flash' alert from the FBI's Cyber Division, a copy of which was obtained by Yahoo News, comes amid heightened concerns among U.S. intelligence officials about the possibility of cyberintrusions, potentially by Russian state-sponsored hackers, aimed at disrupting the November elections." <http://yhoo.it/2bCPzhT>

TRUMP TO TALK IMMIGRATION -- "Trump to give immigration speech this week," by Rebecca Morin: "After postponing an immigration speech he was going to make last week, Donald Trump tweeted he will instead make a speech on the subject this Wednesday in Arizona. The GOP nominee was scheduled to make a speech dealing with immigration on Aug. 25 in Colorado, but delayed the speech after remarks by Trump suggested he was softening his position on deporting the 11 million undocumented immigrants in the United States ... The Sunday morning talk shows were heavy on discussion of Trump's immigration policies, with vice presidential nominee Mike Pence and others promising on Trump's behalf that he would soon make his policies crystal clear." <http://politi.co/2c13yO3>

WHAT TRUMP TOWER IS READING -- "White Retiree Influx Helps Keep Florida in Play for Donald Trump: Demographic trend offsets boost for Democrats from state's growing minority communities," by WSJ's Arian Campo-Flores and Paul Overberg in The Villages, Florida: "Fast-growing minority communities give Democrats an increasing advantage in Florida, one of the most heated battlegrounds in the presidential election. A different and little-noted demographic trend is helping to keep the state competitive for Donald Trump: a new influx of white retirees ... While Democrat Hillary Clinton can lose the state and find other paths to victory, it is seen as a must-win for Mr. Trump. Both candidates have been stumping there regularly. New arrivals like [Art] Donnelly help explain why the Florida race remains tight in polls. The most recent, a Mason-Dixon survey released Friday, showed Mr. Trump trailing Mrs. Clinton by only two points among likely voters, a slim margin helped in part by his lead of over 20 points among white seniors." <http://on.wsj.com/2bK8Xv0>

WEST COAST WATCH -- "'Viva Trump!' Small but vocal group of Latinos rally for Trump in Orange County ," by LATimes' Dan Weikel: "Chanting 'Viva Trump,' several dozen Latino supporters of Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump held a peaceful rally Sunday in front of Anaheim City Hall. 'He's the man,' Marco Gutierrez, a co-founder of Latinos for Trump, said of the candidate. 'He speaks the language of the heart. He can reach people who have been disenfranchised.'" <http://lat.ms/2bvy55c>

ARTICLE OF THE DAY -- "Meet the man siphoning money from Trump's campaign," by Shane Goldmacher: "At a glance, the two websites look virtually indistinguishable. Both feature a photo of Donald Trump, in a suit and red tie, in front of a giant American flag. Both seemingly offer a chance for two to win dinner with Donald Trump. One is at donaldjtrump.com; the other is at dinnerwithtrump.org. The first belongs to Trump's campaign. The second is a scheme run by Ian Hawes, a 25-year-old Maryland man who has no affiliation with Trump or his campaign and who has preyed on more than 20,000 unsuspecting donors, collecting more than $1 million in the process ...

" Of the 156 donors who gave more than $200 to Hawes's group in June - the threshold for names to be included in federal filings - POLITICO contacted dozens and spoke with 11. Everyone interviewed said they believed they had given to Trump's campaign, not an unconnected PAC. 'I would say, unfortunately, that's simply a matter of pure chance,' Hawes said in an interview defending his group and denying it is a scam ... As of Sunday, Hawes' group had raised $1.1 million from 21,253 donors, he said. More than 410,000 people had signed up for the dinner contest - giving him a massive email list he can leverage for more money for years to come."

SHANE'S MONEY KICKER -- "Hawes's most recent activity online was posting publicly on his personal Facebook page that he got engaged in mid-August 'on the bow of the yacht overlooking Miami.' 'Couldn't be more perfect!' he wrote, as he posted pictures sipping champagne with his fiancé and of her glittering oval engagement ring." <http://politi.co/2bw12h4>

DEPT OF YA CAN'T MAKE IT UP -- "Anthony Weiner sexted busty brunette while his son was in bed with him," by N.Y. Post's Rebecca Rosenberg and Bruce Golding: "While his wife, Huma Abedin, travels the country campaigning for Hillary Clinton, the disgraced ex-congressman has been sexting with a busty brunette out West - and even sent her a lurid crotch shot with his toddler son in the picture, The Post has learned ... And while Weiner repeatedly invited her to visit him in New York City, she said, 'We never met.' Asked for comment, Weiner admitted he and the woman 'have been friends for some time.' 'She has asked me not to comment except to say that our conversations were private, often included pictures of her nieces and nephews and my son and were always appropriate,' he said." <http://nyp.st/2bttNhp>

CLINTON STRATEGY -- "Clinton invokes father's memory to hit Trump on business," by AP's Catherine Lucey in Warren, Mich.: "As the Democratic presidential nominee works to undercut Trump's economic record and promote her plans for small businesses, she is invoking memories of her late father's Chicago drapery business. Recalling Hugh Rodham hard at work making and printing curtains for hotels and office buildings, Clinton argues that he would have been 'stiffed' in a deal with the celebrity businessman. ... Clinton hopes to remind voters that despite her years in public life that have left her a multimillionaire, she comes from a middle-class background and understands the life of a small-business owner." <http://apne.ws/2btCLOx>

SWING-STATE WATCH -- "Why McCain refuses to go maverick on Trump," by Burgess Everett in Phoenix: "John McCain [a birthday boy today] has held his tongue for more than a year as Donald Trump dubbed him a loser and 'not a war hero.' Trump accused the Vietnam War POW of failing to help veterans and hesitated to endorse the five-term senator's reelection. The stinging personal criticism has both parties speculating that McCain will finally blow his top once he dispatches his conservative challenger in a primary election on Tuesday. Don't count on it ... 'No. There's no reason to do that,' McCain said in an interview at his campaign headquarters here ... McCain's decision to continue supporting Trump is not without risk, given his decades-old reputation of bucking party orthodoxy as the Senate's resident 'maverick.'" <http://politi.co/2c2ykpM>

-- "Coal Country Is Wary of Hillary Clinton's Pledge to Help," by NYT's Coral Davenport in Lebanon, Virginia: "Washington is gunning for the second pillar of the Appalachian economy, coal, and again a politician, Hillary Clinton, is promising to help - with $30 billion over 10 years to revitalize coal country. As in the case of tobacco, the idea is not to save the old economy, but to create a new one by retraining miners, investing in infrastructure and technology, and luring new industries. Residents here are skeptical, and with good reason, some economists say. Much of the tobacco rescue came from a 1998 settlement between tobacco companies and more than 40 states, requiring the companies to pay more than $200 billion over 25 years to help the victims of tobacco - both those afflicted by cancer and lung disease, and those hurt economically by the decline of the industry." <http://nyti.ms/2cla9ay>

FIRST IN PLAYBOOK -- Republicans for Clinton are launching a website and pledge drive encouraging fellow GOPers to support Clinton. RC416.org founder John Stubbs tells Playbook: "I'm proud we can offer GOP leaders a platform to express their concern with Trump while supporting genuine Republican candidates down-ballot. We've been building the plane while flying it, and our operation is finally catching up with the energy and enthusiasm. We are also looking forward to some new announcements in the coming days." <http://bit.ly/2bQfdAH>

TOP TWEETS -- Paul Farhi (@farhip): "Sign of the times: @cspan tells me it has instituted 3-second delay on call-in shows to stop obscenities from getting on air." ... Kellyanne Conway (@KellyannePolls): "Day 267: No press conference. And no press outrage" ... @brianstelter replies: "Count me as outraged. I think many other journalists are outraged, too"

FED WATCH -- "Dollar at 3-week high, bonds and stocks sell off on hawkish Fed," by Reuters' Anirban Nag in London: "The dollar rose to a three-week high against the yen on Monday, while bond yields surged to their highest since June and stocks sold off after senior Federal Reserve officials indicated a U.S. interest rate increase was on the cards in the near term." <http://reut.rs/2bsyLhh>

COMING ATTRACTIONS -- "Trump Plans to Bring Outreach to Black Audience in Detroit," by Bloomberg's Kevin Cirilli: "Donald Trump is planning to visit Detroit next weekend to make his first appearance before a predominantly African-American audience as his campaign makes a bid for support from black voters. Trump will visit the Great Faith Ministries on Saturday in Detroit, a predominantly black church located in the heart of the city, said Pastor Mark Burns, a Trump supporter who arranged a meeting between the Republican presidential nominee and the church's leader, Bishop Wayne T. Jackson." <http://bloom.bg/2bvWBYf>

HISTORY LESSON -- "When LBJ and Goldwater Agreed to Keep Race Out of the Campaign," by Mark K. Updegrove, director of the LBJ Presidential Library, on Politico: "Unlike many of the 'no' votes, Goldwater's assertion of states' rights was not a smokescreen for personal racism - far from it. Personally, Goldwater, half-Jewish on his father's side, loathed segregation. He ended it at his family's department stores, and vigorously pursued banning it in both Phoenix's public schools and the Arizona National Guard. On the Civil Rights Act, his belief, well-intentioned but misguided, was that the bill overstepped the bounds of what the federal government was permitted to do. Like Goldwater, the issue of racism was personal to Johnson. In his early 20s, Johnson taught impoverished Mexican-American schoolchildren, exposing him to the realities of bigotry, poverty and hatred faced by people of color, which left a searing mark on his conscience." <http://politi.co/2bL8gBo>

BEING THERE -- "A ramshackle village at the center of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict," by WaPo's Bill Booth in Susiya, a village in the West Bank: "For a quick reality check on the current stalemate in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, there's no better place to visit than this little village of miserable huts and sheep pens in the middle of nowhere. The hamlet in the hills south of Hebron has become an improbable proxy in a cold war waged among Jewish settlers, the Israeli government, Western diplomats, peace activists and the 340 or so Arab herders who once inhabited caves on the site and now live in squalid tents.

"Israel's military authority in the West Bank wants to demolish the Palestinian community, contending that the ramshackle structures made of old tires and weathered tarpaulins were built without permits and must come down. The Palestinian residents insist they are not squatters but heirs to the land they have farmed and grazed since the Ottoman era. They say Israel wants to depopulate the area of Arabs and replace them with Jews." <http://wapo.st/2bKpWia>

JOSH ROGIN in WashPost, "Inside the secret U.S.-North Korea 'Track 2' diplomacy": "U.S. experts and former officials secretly met several times with top North Korean officials this year, and some of them have emerged believing the regime of Kim Jong Un is ready to restart talks about its nuclear program. There has been no official dialogue between the U.S. government and North Korea since Kim assumed power following his father's death in 2011. But Pyongyang has quietly maintained contact with Washington through a series of "Track 2" dialogues. Pyongyang often sends senior diplomats to attend these sessions. The Americans who take part are former officials and top Korea and nuclear experts. The meetings have taken place in Berlin, Singapore and Beijing." <http://wapo.st/2bKpUFI>

JIM RUTENBERG on NYT Business Day front, "Plane Rides and Presidential Transparency": "Even Barry Goldwater, the hard-right, press-fighting Republican nominee of 1964, flew with the reporters who covered him. He wound up enjoying it so much he rewarded them with 'Eastern Liberal Press' lapel pins. ... [A] candidate who doesn't want journalists around is a would-be president who presumably doesn't want to be transparent with his or her many millions of viewers and readers - with you. You don't have to go too far back in history to find the rotten fruit that secrecy has seeded. Accept the media banishment now and miss them when they're gone." <http://nyti.ms/2bLtuAR>

--"Hillary Clinton had the chance to make gay rights history. She refused." by WaPo's Robert Samuels: "During her first run for president in 2008, Hillary Clinton had an opportunity to become an undisputed leader in the gay rights movement. As she prepared for a forum on the gay-oriented Logo network, she reached out to her friend Hilary Rosen, a political consultant who is a lesbian. Rosen expressed frustration that so many mainstream political figures opposed legalized same-sex marriage, and she challenged Clinton to speak out for a community that had strongly supported her. 'I'm struggling with how we can support this with a religious and family context,' Rosen recalled Clinton telling her. Clinton just wanted to know the best way to explain the position ...

"Clinton eventually got where her friends wanted her to go, though her change of heart came when the political risk had disappeared - close to a year after similar shifts by President Obama and Vice President Biden ... Clinton's path to get to this point frustrated many of her supporters. While most national politicians have been slow to evolve on gay marriage, Clinton's handling of it was particularly saddening to some activists because they had expected more." <http://wapo.st/2bL47gO>

GLENN THRUSH'S 'OFF MESSAGE' PODCAST -- "Neera Tanden still feels the Bern, and -- to her chagrin -- so does Hillary Clinton. Tanden, a longtime Clinton confidante and influential policy-politics-communications adviser ... even now, a month after the Vermont senator pledged his sincere if grumpy Philly fealty to the nominee, Tanden frets that the attacks Sanders made on Clinton during the primary have done irreparable damage to by eroding trust and feeding Donald Trump's Crooked Hillary crusade. 'I actually have to say I think he brought a lot of really important issues to the floor - but Senator Sanders was prosecuting a much tougher character attack' than Barack Obama waged in 2008." <http://politi.co/2bD0rw2>

2020 WATCH -- "Some talk of 2020 as Kasich thanks NH supporters for their help in his 2016 WH bid," by NH1's Paul Steinhauser in Concord: "While the gathering was billed as a way to personally thank supporters for their help in Kasich's bid for the 2016 GOP presidential nomination, talk of another possible White House bid by Kasich was on the mind of many in attendance ... The crowd went wild when [former Sen. John] Sununu described Kasich as 'the man we all hope someday will be president of the United States.' Kasich, in his comments, said that 'the politics of the future is going to be about how we pull people together.'" <http://bit.ly/2bCmwdZ>

DEEP DIVE - "The Court That Rules the World," by BuzzFeed's Chris Hamby: "Imagine a private, global super court that empowers corporations to bend countries to their will. ... This system is already in place, operating behind closed doors in office buildings and conference rooms in cities around the world. Known as investor-state dispute settlement, or ISDS, it is written into a vast network of treaties that govern international trade and investment, including NAFTA and the Trans-Pacific Partnership, which Congress must soon decide whether to ratify. ... Companies and executives accused or even convicted of crimes have escaped punishment by turning to this special forum." <http://bzfd.it/2bwNHwb>

"Chelsea Clinton is helping Hillary raise funds at an NYC pre-Fashion Week event Sept. 6 with big designer names and a runway show. The highest price is $25,000 and includes five tickets, front-row seats and campaign merch. Another $25,000 package gets you two tickets, backstage access and a rooftop party with the likes of Joseph Altuzarra, Tory Burch, Georgina Chapman, Public School's Dao-Yi Chow and Maxwell Osborne, Prabal Gurung, Marc Jacobs, Diane von Furstenberg and more." <http://pge.sx/2bKu2FE>

POWER PLAYBOOKER -- "Michelle Kwan Is Working for Hillary Clinton," by former POLITICO Marin Cogan in N.Y. Mag: "In a modestly air-conditioned office space in a suburban strip mall in Arlington, Virginia, the Hillary volunteers are phone-banking. They are gathering around card tables and crammed into sofas and loveseats, beneath handmade signs and patriotic bunting, mostly retirees and college students, talking on cell phones and filling out paperwork, pinching the microphones of their headphones between thumb and forefinger and clasping their hands over their ears. At the center of the scene is Michelle Kwan, 36, the legendary Olympic figure-skating medalist. Her hair is shorn in a long summer bob, and she's wearing a black dress with a tulip skirt paired with black ankle-strap heels.

"A small group of volunteers, breaking for a moment to meet their celebrity guest, cautiously hovers around her. 'I am so nervous right now,' one woman says, stepping forward to ask for a picture. 'My sisters are so jealous.' Kwan smiles and says, 'Aww, where are they from?' It's a phenomenon that goes back to the first Clinton administration and was only reinforced during the Obama years: The Democratic party now relies on a constellation of stars among its key supporters and surrogates. The new center of this nexus of politics and celebrity in 2016 is Michelle Kwan, who has the unique role of being both celebrity surrogate and Clinton campaign staffer." <http://nym.ag/2c8fqAU>

ENGAGED - Lauren Culbertson, founder of Millennial Bridge Consulting and a Jonny Isakson alum, to Adam Peters, head of development and construction at Perseus Realty - "We met ... out one night at Martin's Tavern in Georgetown. He proposed on Saturday at sunset on his rooftop surrounded by candles. Knowing how much I love tech, he recorded the whole thing by using a ring box that has a built in camera. We're going to celebrate in Oregon wine country over Labor Day weekend :)" Pic <http://bit.ly/2bQlsEg>

Subject: INVITATION: Come Join the OFFICIAL Trump Hawaii Signwaving Team

Date: Tuesday, August 30, 2016 5:59:47 PM

YOUR INVITATION:
Come Join the OFFICIAL
Trump Hawaii Signwaving Team

Aloha Hawaii Republicans:

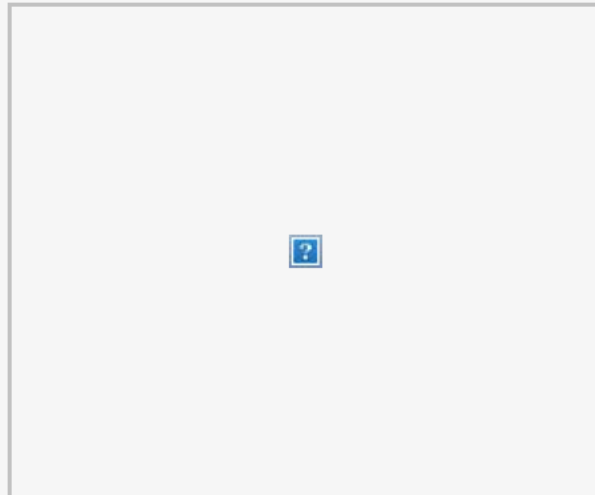

Are you ready for some national campaign fun right here in Hawaii?

Here are the exciting details we've gathered from various online sources . . .

GOP presidential nominee Donald Trump is running a 50-state campaign to win the White House. Here in the 50th State, island Republicans are uniting to help send Hillary Clinton back home to Chicago or Little Rock or Chappaqua or wherever the heck she's from these days.

As you may know, local Trump volunteers are already working the phones from home using smartphone software from the official campaign. If you wish to be part of that effort, please contact Trump Hawaii state director Gigi Jones at (808) 427-3300 or gjones@donalddonald.com.

But if you're up for some local-style signwaving, please head out and join other volunteers for some afternoon fun across the island between now and Election Day . . . STARTING THIS THURSDAY.

HIRA's own vice president Marissa Kerns was recently asked to organize an enthusiastic signwaving effort on Oahu for Trump Team Hawaii. With your help, volunteer signwavers will give Donald Trump's campaign two solid months of visibility in order to help our party's nominee defy expectations on November 8th.

According to their newsletter, the official Team Trump signwaving campaign kicks off

this Thursday,
September 1st, from 4:00pm to

6:00pm in Ewa Beach on Fort Weaver Road (in front of Queen's Medical Center).

If you are as excited about seeing Trump defeat Clinton, please contact Marissa and RSVP right away at (808) 798-9985 or marissa2777@gmail.com.

Please be there in Ewa Beach this Thursday at 4pm. The campaign will provide signs and refreshments.

BONUS: Participants will also get a free Trump t-shirt & bumpersticker (while supplies last). Marissa Kerns says: "Let's show our neighbors just how much we prefer Donald Trump to Hillary Clinton." So head out and signwave with Team Trump Hawaii.

Subject: Nick, I had dinner with Donald Trump...

Ignatius Piazza

Friday, September 9, 2016

Dear (b) (5),

I recently had dinner with Donald Trump.

I sat right across the table from him.

I listened more than I talked.

I thoroughly enjoyed the evening I spent with him.

Dr. Ignatius Piazza

Donald Trump looked healthy, well-rested and was extremely energetic. His conversation was positive, passionate, articulate, and intelligent. He is VERY "Presidential."

Refreshingly, he is not a "politician." He speaks his mind and is not willing to buckle under any pressure from anyone in his efforts to make America great again.

Regardless of whether you are a Republican, Libertarian, Democrat or Independent, if you care about your Second Amendment rights, there is really only one candidate to vote for. That candidate is Donald Trump.

Whether you believe Donald Trump can actually make America great again or not, if you care about your Second Amendment rights, there is only one candidate to vote for. That candidate is Donald Trump.

Whether you agree with Donald Trump's position on immigration, foreign policy, economics, taxes, the military, social security, health care or not, if you care about your Second Amendment rights, there is only one candidate to vote for. That candidate is Donald Trump.

WHY? Because Donald Trump and his family are very pro-gun. I have had numerous conversations with Donald's son Eric Trump as well. Donald, Donald Jr. and Eric are big time gun owners, train with their guns, and are VERY familiar with Front Sight. The Trumps cherish the Second Amendment the way you and I do. To the Trumps, "Making America Great Again" means protecting and restoring the Second Amendment. They don't just talk the talk. They walk the walk.

On the other hand, you have Hillary Clinton, who has publicly stated many times that if she could, she would confiscate every gun in America!

Even more important than what Donald Trump can do for America over the next 8 years is the fact that the next President of the United States will have the opportunity to appoint FOUR, possibly five Supreme Court Justices! If Donald Trump is making those appointments, you can be SURE the Second Amendment will be protected for the next fifty years or more.

If you let Hillary Clinton make the next four or five Supreme Court Justice appointments, she will appoint anti-gun justices and in the next several years, the individual right to keep and bear arms will be overturned at the Supreme Court level.

As I said, if you care about your Second Amendment rights, there is only one candidate to vote for and that candidate is Donald Trump. Voting for anyone else will place your Second Amendment rights in imminent peril.

He has my vote. He should have yours too.

So what can you do to help? THREE EASY STEPS...

1. MAKE SURE YOU ARE REGISTERED TO VOTE AND MAKE SURE YOU VOTE!!! I cannot emphasize this enough. DO NOT sit on the sidelines and think that your vote is not needed. EVERY VOTE for the Second Amendment is needed. It is our duty and honor to uphold and defend the freedom our forefathers fought and died to give us. Voting is Freedom. Fire a shot in defense of the Second Amendment by voting for Donald Trump. If you have not yet registered to vote, go to <https://vote.usa.gov/> and register online. It is easy. NO EXCUSES.
2. Financially support the ONLY pro-gun candidate who can win the Presidency of the United States. Go to <https://www.donaldjtrump.com/> The Trumps don't just talk about "Making America Great Again." They believe it and they have put tens of millions of dollars of their OWN money behind it. They have also taken their attention away from their own extremely successful businesses to focus on turning our country around and protecting the rights you and I cherish. So don't sit on the sidelines! Do as I have and do as the Trumps have. Make a financial contribution to elect the ONLY pro-gun candidate who can win the election and become the next President of the United States! Financially support the Trump campaign!
3. Get involved on the ground as I am doing to help the ONLY pro-gun candidate who can win the election and become the next President of the United States! You can make a big difference. You Can Help Make America Great Again! Volunteer to help the Trump campaign win the election! Go to <https://www.donaldjtrump.com/volunteer> and see all the different ways you can help and become part of the team making America great again!

Want to know what I said to Donald Trump as I shook his hand after dinner?

I said, "No matter what happens, no matter how hard your detractors push you, no matter how badly the politically correct media treats you, NEVER apologize for speaking your mind."

Donald responded. "I won't. I can tell you wouldn't either."

We nodded in agreement.

Donald Trump looked healthy, well-rested and was extremely energetic. His conversation was positive, passionate, articulate, and intelligent. He is VERY "Presidential."

Whether you believe Donald Trump can actually make America great again or not, if you care about your Second Amendment rights, there is only one candidate to vote for. That candidate is Donald Trump.

Whether you agree with Donald Trump's position on immigration, foreign policy, economics, taxes, the military, social security, health care or not, if you care about your Second Amendment rights, there is only one candidate to vote for. That candidate is Donald Trump.

WHY? Because Donald Trump and his family are very pro-gun. I have had numerous conversations with Donald's son Eric Trump as well. Donald, Donald Jr. and Eric are big time gun owners, train with their guns, and are VERY familiar with Front Sight. The Trumps cherish the Second Amendment the way you and I do. Dear (b) (6), (b) (7)(C),

I recently had dinner with Donald Trump.

I sat right across the table from him.

I listened more than I talked.

I thoroughly enjoyed the evening I spent with him.

Donald Trump looked healthy, well-rested and was extremely energetic. His conversation was positive, passionate, articulate, and intelligent. He is VERY "Presidential."

Refreshingly, he is not a "politician." He speaks his mind and is not willing to buckle under any pressure from anyone in his efforts to make America great again.

Regardless of whether you are a Republican, Libertarian, Democrat or Independent, if you care about your Second Amendment rights, there is really only one candidate to vote for. That candidate is Donald Trump.

Whether you believe Donald Trump can actually make America great again or not, if you care about your Second Amendment rights, there is only one candidate to vote for. That candidate is Donald Trump.

Whether you agree with Donald Trump's position on immigration, foreign policy, economics, taxes, the military, social security, health care or not, if you care about your Second Amendment rights, there is only one candidate to vote for. That candidate is Donald Trump.

WHY? Because Donald Trump and his family are very pro-gun. I have had numerous conversations with Donald's son Eric Trump as well. Donald, Donald Jr. and Eric are big time gun owners, train with their guns, and are VERY familiar with Front Sight. The Trumps cherish the Second Amendment the way you and I do. To the Trumps, "Making America Great Again" means protecting and restoring the Second Amendment. They don't just talk the talk. They walk the walk.

On the other hand, you have Hillary Clinton, who has publicly stated many times that if she could, she would confiscate every gun in America!

Even more important than what Donald Trump can do for America over the next 8 years is the fact that the next President of the United States will have the opportunity to appoint FOUR, possibly five Supreme Court Justices! If Donald Trump is making those appointments, you can be SURE the Second Amendment will be protected for the next fifty years or more.

If you let Hillary Clinton make the next four or five Supreme Court Justice appointments, she will appoint anti-gun justices and in the next several years, the individual right to keep and bear arms will be overturned at the Supreme Court level.

As I said, if you care about your Second Amendment rights, there is only one candidate to vote for and that candidate is Donald Trump. Voting for anyone else will place your Second Amendment rights in imminent peril.

He has my vote. He should have yours too.

So what can you do to help? THREE EASY STEPS...

1. MAKE SURE YOU ARE REGISTERED TO VOTE AND MAKE SURE YOU VOTE!!! I cannot emphasize this enough. DO NOT sit on the sidelines and think that your vote is not needed. EVERY VOTE for the Second Amendment is needed. It is our duty and honor to uphold and defend the freedom our forefathers fought and died to give us. Voting is Freedom. Fire a shot in defense of the Second Amendment by voting for Donald Trump. If you have not yet registered to vote, go to <https://vote.usa.gov/> and register online. It is easy. NO EXCUSES.
2. Financially support the ONLY pro-gun candidate who can win the Presidency of the United States. Go to <https://www.donaldjtrump.com/> The Trumps don't just talk about "Making America Great Again." They believe it and they have put tens of millions of dollars of their OWN money behind it. They have also taken their attention away from their own extremely successful businesses to focus on turning our country around and protecting the rights you and I cherish. So don't sit on the sidelines! Do as I have and do as the Trumps have. Make a financial contribution to elect the ONLY pro-gun candidate who can win the election and become the next President of the United States! Financially support the Trump campaign!
3. Get involved on the ground as I am doing to help the ONLY pro-gun candidate who can win the election and become the next President of the United States! You can make a big difference. You Can Help Make America Great Again! Volunteer to help the Trump campaign win the election! Go to <https://www.donaldjtrump.com/volunteer> and see all the different ways you can help and become part of the team making America great again!

Want to know what I said to Donald Trump as I shook his hand after dinner?

I said, "No matter what happens, no matter how hard your detractors push you, no matter how badly the politically correct media treats you, NEVER apologize for speaking your mind."

Donald responded. "I won't. I can tell you wouldn't either."

We nodded in agreement.

Dear (b) (6), (b) (7),

Response from the membership to the e-mail I sent the other day has been swift and strong!

With nearly a million people trained, Front Sight has Republicans, Democrats, Libertarians and Independents as members. What we all have in common is the understanding of the extreme value and importance the Second Amendment provides. If it falls, we all lose the ability to protect ourselves, families, communities and country against enemies, foreign or domestic.

Here are a few examples of the thousands of responses I received from my "I had dinner with Trump" e-mail...

I am glad you sent this out. I held my nose the last three elections and voted for the person I thought was the better of two weak candidates, whether I liked everything about them or not. It is time for other professing conservatives to hold their nose this time around and vote. This one is not even a close call regarding who is going to have the stronger positions on issues that are important to the survival of this country and freedom. I do vote. I will vote. And, yes, I am encouraging anyone I can to vote. Conservatives who are running Trump down and not voting, in my mind, are not truly conservatives, they are establishment leeches who are more concerned about their personal ambitions than the good of this country and freedom. Thank you for using your position and influence to say something. It tells me you are more concerned about being a patriot than a politician. Karl P.

Two warriors. That is awesome. Stay in the fight! Joe C.

I have to tell you that before I read your e-mail, I was planning on voting for Johnson / Weld only because I thought Johnson was more pro 2nd amendment than Trump. This is because of Trump's previous support of anti-2nd amendment politicians (Hillary herself) among others, but with Bill Weld's recent comments on "assault weapons" and with your personal insight to Trump, I will vote for him and urge others to do so as well. Michael G.

God bless you, Sir you made my day with your e-mail. Aschary L.

Thank you for your letter. You have hit on the most important nerve. It is called FREEDOM. Robert W.

Thanks for promoting the only candidate that will do the work necessary to recover and preserve our 2nd Amendment rights. I've seen the published list of his potential nominees for the current vacancy on the Supreme Court, and they're all quite good choices. While Mr. Trump wasn't my first choice as candidate on the Republican ticket, I am registered to vote and will be voting for him. I'm also trying to talk sense into as many '#NeverTrump' Republicans as I can. There's just too much at stake to 'sit this one out', and while his background is not that of a constitutional scholar, he does love America, and he understands what's at stake. I believe he's a good enough man to make the hard choices and do so in a way as to increase our liberty. And my, what a breath of fresh air that will be! I don't think that he'll be our nation's savior - but he does appear to be the man to shake things up and at least start turning back the growing tide of tyranny. Thanks for sharing your impressions from this meeting. It reinforces what I've believed about him from the start. Brian E.

In any other election year, I might have been offended if someone I didn't know told me how to vote. But I had reached the same conclusions you did about Donald Trump... You may recall in the 1980s that the media painted Ronald Reagan as the guy who was going to nuke Russia, how they pooh-poohed his economics, and how they lambasted him with unfair characterizations. Up to that point I had voted for Democrats in every election. I was one of those Reagan Democrats, and I will be a Trump Republican. As a lawyer we traditionally support Democrats because a conservative supreme court works against individual litigants... But - as someone who values my Second Amendment rights, I have become one of those dreaded "one issue" voters. I will not vote for anyone from local sheriff up to president who will not promise to uphold my right to keep and most importantly, bear arms.... And, I agree, he does look presidential. We need someone who isn't willing to mince words. It may please the liberal media for him to use politically-correct speech, but sometimes a leader has to call an SOB an SOB.

Thank you for doing your part. I have donated, and I continue to donate to Mr. Trump. He is so right about one thing: together we can make America Great Again. But we can't stand back and let everyone else do it, we have to take ownership, and do as you have done. We need to write our friends and clients and tell them what we know... I appreciate your report more than you know. Anthony D.

I can't tell you enough how happy and grateful I am with you for sending this communication! Seems evident that the pundits (as always) miss read Trump. They expect so see him behave and communicate under an artificial, inflexible, fake character/roll and not from who he is and what he is truly offering (way more than any of the previous candidates and former presidents have done before). I am not naive to believe that he will get everything accomplished and no mistakes will be made, but compared to the abysmal contrast with Clinton there should not be a tough decision to vote Trump. German G.

And, believe it or not, there were a few like this:

Our Second Amendment rights have been protected by Democrats for many years. I am concerned that people believe Trump will protect our rights - I think they have been misled or don't read very much. Charlotte S.

What? I don't think Charlotte read my e-mail.

Here it is again, for clarity...

Hillary Clinton, Terry McAuliffe, and Tim Kaine thought that they had Virginia in the bag. This state is within the margin of error which means we need to make sure we get our voters to the polls.

Come WALK and TALK for Trump on Saturday and automatically be entered to meet Donald Trump the next time he is in Virginia.

Saturday is the Trump Campaign's NATIONAL DAY OF ACTION. Mr. Trump needs you to get involved. There is simply too much at stake to sit on the sidelines.

We look forward to hearing from you, and someone will reach out to you directly.

Thank you for helping to MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN!

TRUMP RALLY TO BE HELD AT ORLANDO MELBOURNE INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT

Tenants are advised that a political rally for the "Donald Trump for President" campaign will be held Tuesday afternoon, September 27th at the AeroMod International Hangar. Gates will open at 3. The candidate is expected to arrive via his campaign aircraft at approximately 6 p.m.

It is expected that more than 10,000 people will attend.

Regardless of politics, it is expected that many employees will want to be spectators at this event. We have arranged for airport tenants to have first access to the free tickets via the link below. Badged employees do not require a ticket. We encourage airport-based employees to stay parked in their designated parking and walk to the event. A special section will be set aside in the hangar for badged employees.

We are working closely with law enforcement on parking and security logistics and will update you as plans are finalized.
